This index to Llewellyn Traces, Volume 5, 1993, contains about 3,000 names, bringing our total of names published in Llewellyn Traces during its first five years to nearly 13,000. Once again we suggest checking every possible spelling of the surname for the given name being researched.

A comparison of this index with those of the previous four volumes shows that many new allied names were included in Llewellyn Traces in 1993. Once again, women are indexed by both their maiden and married surnames when both are available.

For the first time, Volume 5 issues included the lower-case "ffluellen" surname as used in various spellings in the middle to later 1600s. Often the lower case was used interchangeably with the upper case, and spellings varied widely.

Also, in alphabetical sequence of given names, grouped as "Negro," are nearly three dozen Negroes who were mentioned in various wills. Although they were not specifically referred to as slaves, no doubt they were. Should any have been willed in earlier and later wills, their transfer from one owner to another might be proof of relationship between the makers of the wills in which they were mentioned. Slaves were counted in the 1850 Slave Schedule, a separate section of the 1850 U. S. Census, but were enumerated only by age and sex and not by name. As was the custom, it's quite possible that a good many of these persons adopted one of many spellings of the Llewellyn or Flewollen surname upon manumission or emancipation.
